

Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

Clematis Jouiniana, Spingarn

This important new Clematis, which is hardy anywhere, was originated by the late J. E. Spingarn, who thought enough of the variety to attach his own name to it.

Like the popular Virgins-Bower (Clematis paniculata), this variety is at home in full sun although some shade is harmless. It is a vigorous grower, putting up several strong canes from the base which make it an ideal plant for spreading out over a trellis, wall, fence, or arbor. The large foliage is clean and decidedly ornamental, and from the axils of each leaf-stem, a flower-stem develops, so that the plant is covered from top to bottom with masses of spicily fragrant flowers from late August through September.

The flowers are small, reflexing bells of pale violet-blue and are produced in panicles made up of 3 to 6 clusters of from one to two dozen bells each.

So different, so desirable, and so easy to grow, this new Clematis should be as widely planted as the popular Japanese Paniculata whose fragrant white flowers are now seen almost everywhere during early fall, and the fact that this new variety is hardy anywhere increases its value.

Clematis Jouiniana, Spingarn, is offered to the public this spring for the first time, and while we have a goodly number of fine plants there are not as many of them as the importance of the variety warrants. We therefore suggest early ordering so that your plants will be reserved for shipment at the proper time.

$1.50 each; 3 for $4.00

*Postpaid east of Mississippi
West of Mississippi, add 25c. for postage*

JAMES I. GEORGE & SON
Fairport, New York

New Clematis Jouiniana, Spingarn

HARDY ANYWHERE

JAMES I. GEORGE & SON, Fairport, New York